LABOR SAVING IMPLEMENTS ADVISED FOR CULTIVATION

Use of a rotary hoe, spike-toothed harrow or weeder for the first corn cultivation has been advised as a labor saving practice by the Extension Service at V. P. I.

The advice came from H. L. Dunton, head of the agronomy department, who said the cultivation should be made when the corn is three to four inches high.

Use of either implement will not only save labor, but will kill weeds in an early stage of growth and make it easier to keep the field weed-free for the rest of the season, Dunton said.

For later cultivations, the agronomist warned that farmers should be careful to cultivate shallow and level. Many yields, he said, are reduced by deep cultivation which injures roots after they have matted across the rows.

Deep cultivation will cut feeder roots and thus keep the plant from getting needed moisture and food, Dunton said.

Germans Make Ersatz Meat, Milk Products

FRANKFURT, GERMANY.—Defeated Germany has produced two new ersatz foods which may raise diet standars for poor people everywhere.

The new foods are ersatz meat and milk. They have the same caloric value as real meat and milk at about half the price.

American officials say the new foods are potentially a great innovation in human feeding. Here's why, in the words of Gaynm Garnett, chief of the Anglo-American bipartite food office:

"Into these products, the deficits of the diet in proteins, minerals and vitamins can be added at will. Not only is the program potentially of great importance for Western Germany but for the countries of Western Europe and all poor people. It provides them with the essential human nutrients at low cost."

Sold in Cans

In food-short western Germany, the ersatz meat is sold in cans or in sausage-like rolls. The price is 3.20 marks (about 95 cents) for two pounds. Real meat sells for $1.50 for the same quantity.

Western Germans are buying the ersatz meat faster than plants can turn it out, says W. D. Mitchell, British deputy chief of the bipartite food office. Five favorites are producing it.

Garnett says the ersatz meat "is composed of an equal amount of sausage and of defatted soya, food yeast, fat, hydralized proteins, cereals and spices.

"It can be given the flavor of fish, poultry, lamb, beef or pork by adding extracts of these products."

German scientists working under the direction of American food officers developed the ersatz meat.

The ersatz milk—called lactavena already is being fed to young children in the milk-short Ruhr area. A Hamburg concern is producing 100 tons a month.

A British medical research group working in the Ruhr with German scientists developed lactavena. It is a dried mixture of soya, malted barley, corn, sugar and wheat with 10 per cent dried skim milk. It is fortified with Vitamins A, D and C and Vitamin B complex and calcium.

Milk Substitute

Garnett says it is "a complete substitute for whole milk after being reconstituted by the addition of water. It has been fed on an experimental basis throughout the bizonal area with excellent results."

American and German experts struck many snags before developing the ersatz milk. Soya alone was found to be an incomplete protein and dangerous for child feeding. The addition of malted barley wheat and a small portion of dried skim milk completely corrected this fault.

Then it was found that lactavena could not be used in foods because heating created a bad flavor. Improvement in the processing techniques overcame this last hurdle.

First Trans-America Railroad Marks 80th Anniversary in 1949

OGDEN, UTAH.—The governor of California swung a silver mallet at a golden spike—and missed. But few people knew that and no one really cared.

That swing, just 80 years ago, marked completion of America's first transcontinental railroad.

There was literal dancing in the streets over the country that day.

The driving of the golden spike at Promontory, Utah, was one of those great historical events that capture the imagination and hold it through succeeding generations.

The locomotives met at the point where rails from the Missouri River met those from the Pacific Ocean after one of the most epic building races of all time.

Any event 80 years ago is apt to become a bit distorted as fact mingles with legend. In the case of the golden spike ceremony, it seems that some of the facts have been dropped by the wayside and it is the legend which persists.

Actually, railroad historians and the reminiscences of persons who witnessed the event are pretty well agreed that:

(1)—Gov. Leland Stanford of California, president of the Central Pacific Railroad and the man who usually gets credit for "driving" the last spike, swung the ceremonial mallet and missed.

(2)—The man who followed him was too polite to do better than his predecessor, so he too missed. (He was Dr. Thomas C. Durant, vice president of the Union Pacific Railroad).

(3)—The spike probably couldn't have been driven, anyway. It was made from 23 $20 gold pieces and was much too soft for such treatment. Instead, it was gently tapped by many persons into a hole which had been drilled to receive it.

Girl Who Was Going Blind Now Cuba's Top Ballerina

HAVANA, CUBA. — Once the doctors said Alicia Alonso, Cuba's great ballet dancer, was going blind.

Now she heads one of America's greatest dance organizations and is a darling in her own country. She dances so beautifully that anybody can enjoy ballet.

She got her big break last year when ballet hit a slump in New York City. Out of a job, she organized her own company, brought it to Cuba, and was a tremendous hit.

Now the Cubans are talking about endowing her. A popular movement is under way to raise funds to finance her shows in other nations as "Cuba's greatest ambassadress of culture."

'Do-Yourself-Designs' Aid Hospital Facilities

BOSTON.—Trustees of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital have completed negotiations for the installation of 32 "minimal" private room units designed especially for the institution.

The units resemble pullman carroomettes and encourage the patients to do as much as he can himself. Adjacent to the head of the bed are facilities for controlling daylight and artificial illumination. Equally handy are a bedside table, drawers and cabinet, and a two-way communication system with the nurse's desk in the corridor.

The designers are Frederick E. Markus and Paul F. Nocka, graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. They spent a year in research, visualizing themselves as patient, nurse, doctor and janitor. Occasionally, they used stop watches to check on time in performing various services for patients.

As a result, medical and nursing executives of the hospital believe that much of the present-day nursing routine will be unnecessary. The trustees voted to use a privately raised fund of $250,000 to go ahead with the project.

Illinois Governor Vetoes Bill Banning Roving Cats

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Gov. Adlai Stevenson has vetoed a bill to curb delinquency of cats.

The state of Illinois, he said, has "enough to do without trying to control feline delinquency."

The bill would have permitted any person to capture cats running at large anywhere in the state and turn them over to police. Owners would get their pets back by paying a $1 fine.

Stevenson steered a neutral course between cat fanciers and bird lovers in explaining the veto. "The problem of cat versus bird is as old as time," the governor said. He vetoed the bill "not because I love birds the less or cats the more."

He warned that such a law might become a dangerous precedent.

"Who knows but what we may be called upon to take sides as well in the age old problem of dog versus bird, bird versus bird, or even bird versus worm?" Stevenson asked.

He said it is "in the nature of cats" to do some unescorted roaming."

Society Seeks Descendants Of Early Portrait Painter

NEW YORK.—Where are the descendants of Gilbert Stuart, the Artists' Fellowship, would like to know.

The fellowship has been trying to find a lineal decendant of the famous portrait painter of George Washington. They have had no luck.

The fellowship ran into the genealogical mystery when it decided to give Stuart first mention among artists of an earlier period in its newly prepared Doomsday Book. The huge, ornate book contains parchment-like testimonials to the greatness of those honored within it.

The fellowship is preparing duplicate testimonials to be presented to a lineal decendant of the honored artist.

We agree on Stuart as the top portrait man of his day," said Francis Vanadeveer Kughler, historian of the fellowship. "We had no idea there was a scarcity of Stuart decendants."

Kughler drew up the Stuart testimonial. Then he began looking. He looked in art histories. They told all about Stuart's art but nothing about his family. He looked in biographical dictionaries. One said Stuart had two daughters, one said he had 12 children.

Stuart died in Boston in 1828. His widow and four surviving daughters moved to Newport. A daughter named Ann married a man named Stebbins.

That's as far as the information goes.

Kughler's studio is at 39 East 35th Street, New York.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Ferguson announce the engagement of their daughter, Rachel Victoria, to William Henry Goin, of Pamplin. The wedding will take place in July.

To the Voters of the Town of Appomattox:

I wish to express to you, the voters of our fine town my very sincere appreciation for your vote and confidence in selecting me as one of your six Councilmen for the next term. I made no campaign promises before the election, but I do promise at this time, to do my utmost to fulfill the duties of the office to which I was elected by such a fine vote.

Sincerely,
John Curtis Caldwell.

To the Voters of Appomattox:

I wish to thank the people of Appomattox for re-electing me to the Town Council in Tuesday's election. I will serve in this office to the best of my ability.

J. E. JAMERSON.

To the Voters of Appomattox:

I wish to thank the people of Appomattox for the vote they gave me in Tuesday's town lection.

I also wish to thank the Times-Virginia for the publicity given to the facts involved in the bond issue election, and also the Water Company of Appomattox for the fine letter in support of the bond issue they sent to their customers.

CHAS. F. JAMES.

To the Voters of Appomattox:

I wish to express my appreciation to those who supported me in the recent Councilmanic election. I consider it an honor to be elected from such a fine group of candidates and, needless to say, I shall serve to the best of my ability.

C. J. JENKINS.

NOTICE OF THANKS:

I want to take this opportunity to thank each of you for your support in electing me to the Town Council. I shall do my very best to merit a continuance of your confidence. There has been a great deal said about Appomattox's material growth and I am sure that I am as much interested as anyone; but I am more interested in the town's spiritual growth, realizing that if we can make our town clean morally God will bless us materially. Let's all work together to make our town the kind of town God would have it.

F. L. MURPHY.
